

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

Volume 32
Issue 1 Spring

Article 13

2002

To Paraphrase

Bradley Paul

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Paul, Bradley. "To Paraphrase." The Iowa Review 32.1 (2002): 56-56. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.5507>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

BRADLEY PAUL

To Paraphrase

56

I invoked one thing for questioning;
all things were ripe;
I remembered the taste of just one food;
it was May when I ate it
and I was sick on that day,
yet all things were ripe
and festered on the pavement,
the mulberries and the musk-rose
and the heavy other fruits.
And the moss came up from the bricks
and tasted each thing once
and for a long time.
And I knew about this
and spoke not to the ear
nor to the steaming grass,
and did not look at the pear on its bough,
and tasted no thing for any time,
and felt no settlement of the heavy air,
though it was the thing that I wanted.